School bus service now on the chopping block

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

School bus rides will probably be a thing of the past for most local elementary and middle school-grade kids next year. But the school board at the Washington Unified School District is considering a planned cut to bus service in the afternoon leaving from River City High School.

Last month, the board approved a number of budget cuts aimed at closing an estimated $2.5 million gap for fiscal year 2012-2013. They did so by looking at a set of recommendations from their superintendent, who was reacting to cuts in state funding.

The board okayed larger class sizes in grades K-3 (from a 20:1 student-teacher ratio up to as much as 25:1) and in 9th grade classes. It also trimmed custodial services, training workshops, high school counselor staff, and made a number of other cuts, getting WUSD about halfway to the $2.5 million goal for budget reduction.

One approved cut was to busing service for most K-8 kids in WUSD. Another was for the bus service taking high school kids home from RCHS in the afternoon. Bus service taking to RCHS in the mornings remains in the plan.

"The board took action to eliminate K-8 transportation entirely," Superintendent Dayton Gilleland told the News-Ledger. "We're moving some school boundaries and we think we can accommodate more kids at their neighborhood school. The board also took action to eliminate afternoon transportation at the high school."

But, he added, several board members have had second thoughts about that. The board will talk about it one more time at tomorrow's board meeting.

"I think what's probably going to stick is (the cut to) the K-8 services," said Gilleland. "The K-8 transportation piece we have calculated to save $705,000."

Cutting the high school's afternoon bus service would save around $199,000, he said. But he wouldn't be surprised if the board restores that planned service at Thursday's meeting.

The state of California has clipped the amount of money it contributes to busing kids to school.

"Up until this year, we were funded at about 30 cents on the dollar," said Gilleland. That amounts to around $300,000 of the million-dollar annual bus tab.

Is this permanent, or will money come back for school buses when the state's budget picture turns back around in a few years?

"I think it will come back," said Gillleland. "Transportation is something we would want to restore as soon as we could."

Some K-8 students would still get WUSD bus service to school.

"We still have a mandate to provide special education transportation and 'school choice' provision," Gilleland explained. Any student who couldn't be accommodated at his or her local campus, and had to be bused to another because of "overflow" would also get a ride from WUSD.

The bus cuts could reduce hours for school transportation staff or cause layoffs after this year (the employee union has "expressed concern," said Gilleland). Most of the buses, though, have been doing duty at staggered times for both K-8 students and high school students, so the district will not be left with a significant surplus of buses.

WUSD faces layoffs next year "unless we get concessions" from employee unions, said Gilleland.

Thursday's meeting is at 6 p.m. at city hall.

Also on the agenda is consideration of the district's curriculum for the state-mandated teaching of HIV and AIDS prevention, currently taught in 7th and 9th grades. A representative of a local Russian Baptist church has expressed concerns about the plan.

Families currently have to sign off on HIV/AIDS education programs for their kids, but the planned change would change it to "passive" permission – students would get the education unless their parents actively "opt out."

For the first time in school history, RCHS will be represented at the California State High School Speech Association Championships. Jacob Andrus, Team Captain, and Beverly Harris, a sophomore (both pictured above), will be competing against the top 56 teams in California in the Duo Interpretation event.

Their performance of "Doubt: A Parable," was one of only four interpretations to qualify from the entire greater Sacramento area. Jacob was instrumental in starting a team at RCHS after moving to West Sacramento two years ago.

The RCHS Speech and Debate Team is in its second year and is coached by Jared Andrus at the school. The state tournament will be held from April 27-29 at San Francisco's Lowell High School.

West Sacramento's city council on Feb. 22 honored Democratic Congressman Mike Thompson, who since 2003 has represented the city and region. A city spokesman credited Thompson with assisting West Sacramento's efforts to improve its levee protection and make the Port of West Sacramento more successful.

The council presented Thompson with a framed illustration of Jefferson Boulevard poppies, drawn by Dan Harris, was presented to Congressman Thompson during an appreciation breakfast in the City Hall Galleria attended by local elected officials. The Congressman had supported the effort to landscape Jefferson Blvd.

West Sac local news nuggets:

Corporate donors step up, port gets rail funding, school board looks at new bond

The Port of West Sacramento announced yesterday it had received a $960,000 grant from the Federal Railroad Administration for construction of a rail loop track that will consolidate switching and looping operations and reduce conflicts between trains and surface street traffic.

Safeway has provided a $5,000 donation to help bring fresh fruits and vegetables to low-income West Sacramento residents, according to the Yolo County Child Abuse Council and Yolo Co. Children's Alliance.

The produce is distributed weekly on Friday mornings at the Alyce Norman Center.

The Home Depot Foundation has donated $20,000 to the "A Brush With Kindness" program run by Habitat for Humanity's Yolo County chapter.

The program helps needy people with exterior repairs to their homes, including roof repair, wheelchair ramps, painting, weatherization and landscaping. It's currently focused on several homes in the Bryte and Broderick areas of West Sacramento.

In 2011, the foundation gave Habitat Yolo $10,000 to finish homes in the Heidrick Ranch project in Woodland. The new founding will allow "A Brush With Kindness" to complete repair projects at six West Sacramento houses, reports Habitat Yolo.

"Mayors for Meals" day is coming up on March 21 and other days in March, says the Elderly Nutrition Program of Yolo County.

Mayors and city council members from throughout Yolo County will volunteer to deliver meals to homebound seniors (in the "Meals on Wheels" service) and will help staff community kitchens and dining rooms run by the Elderly Nutrition Program.

A "Meals on Wheels" operation helps bring hot lunches to West Sacramento shutins.

The West Sacramento Elks Lodge is giving away about 600 Webster dictionaries to third graders in the Washington Unified School District. The program is in its fifth year, attempting to help kids become good readers.

The West Sacramento Redevelopment Agency – like other such agencies in California – is being shut down by state law. This "winding down" will be managed by local "successor agencies," whose oversight boards have room for citizen volunteers.

The successor agencies will help dispose of redevelopment assets and take other needed actions to close the local redevelopment agency. For information about serving on the oversight board, call (530) 666-8195 or visit www.yolocounty.org (go to "government," then "board of supervisors," and then "advisory bodies").

West Sacramento's school board members last month talked about recent poll results and expressed an interest in pursuing a new bond measure or parcel tax for the November local ballot. If they succeed, they hope to use funds for projects such as school repairs or a new career/technical education center.

More on that topic in next week's News-Ledger.

Convicted for attack in Lowe's parking lot

District Attorney Jeff Reisig announced that on February 27, a Yolo County jury convicted three members of the Norteno street gang of robbery, battery, assault, witness intimidation and street gang activity for an attack on three people in a Lowe's parking lot in West Sacramento on April 19, 2010.

According to the D.A.:

The three defendants, Jose Antonio Duran (20, of Sacramento), Salvador Benjamin Vasquez, Jr. (20, of Sacramento) and Joseph Vincent Sisneros (21, of Sacramento) saw the victim eating his Taco Bell dinner in his car. The man was in a nearly empty lot on Lake Washington Boulevard in Southport, just after 10 p.m..

The three gang members took the victim's iPod, wallet and keys, then continued beating the victim, causing two facial fractures, while the victim pleaded for the men to stop.

Four Lowe's employees who walked into the lot after their shifts ended interrupted the attack. The four — all of whom testified at the trial — saw the three defendants taking turns punching the victim while shouting "Norte!" and laughing.

One of the suspects, Salvador Vasquez pretended to hold a gun under his shirt and repeatedly threatened to shoot the Lowe's employee who was calling 911. The employee escaped by running to nearby Lake Washington Boulevard, but the second employee was caught by Duran and Sisneros. The second employee held up his hands in surrender, but the two defendants brutally attacked him, kicking him in the eye and breaking his nose.

The trial took two weeks and included testimony from a Sacramento Police Gang Detective who told a jury the Norteno street gang thrives on a reputation for violence and that the assault furthered those interests.

District Attorney Jeff Reisig thanked the Sacramento Police Department for offering their assistance, and thanked the citizens who were brave enough to intervene in the assault and to come forward to testify at the trial.

The defendants will be sentenced on April 13.

The king who tied up Death

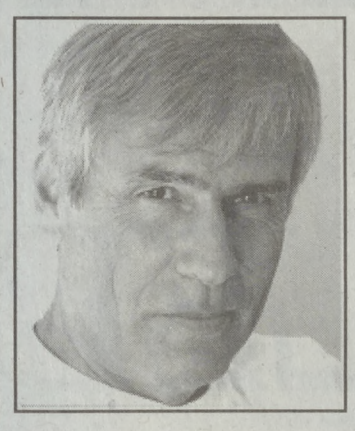
My Back Pages



By Daryl Fisher

Editor's note: Daryl is off this week. Below is one of his favorite columns from the past, penned in 1995.

For those of you who recall your ancient Greek mythology, you will remember that there was once a place called Mount Olympus where all the great gods lived. According to the Greek poets, the king of the gods was Zeus (or Jupiter) and his queen was a lovely lady named Hera (or Juno), who also happened to be his sister, which was apparently permitted back then. Some of the other gods who had the right to hang out on the mountain top were Apollo (the sun god), Venus (who was in charge of love and beauty), Neptune (the ocean), Mars (war), and Mercury (messages). Among the subordinate deities were Ceres (agriculture), Minerva (wisdom), Vesta (home life), Iris (rainbows), Hebe (the goddess of youth), Eileithyia (who helped women in childbirth), and Vulcan (who looked after blacksmiths and was the only one who had a death grip to go along with his thunderbolt).

Anyway, there was once a great king of Corinth who went by the extremely hard-to-pronounce name of Sisyphus. He was said to be the most intelligent and tricky of men, and his schemes even puzzled the ancient gods. He boldly stole their secrets, absolutely refused to be panicked by their admonitions, and showed an alarming disrespect for their many powers. His scorn of the gods, his lack of fear of death, and his passion for life made him, as it has made other like-minded men and women down through the ages, a very dangerous individual indeed.

Sisyphus, however, finally got in a little over his head when he tried to stop Zeus from kidnapping a woman he was celestially interested in, and Zeus immediately sent Death to punish him the only way he knew how. But being the ingenious guy he was, Sisyphus somehow tricked Death and tied him up with chains, which was of course no easy feat. And not only did this greatly benefit Sisyphus, but it was said that no other man died while Death was bound.

Now Pluto (the god of the Lower World) got wind of all this through Mercury (who was always passing gossip back and forth) and he sent Mars (the god of war) to free Death and give him complete power over Sisyphus. As you might suspect, it wasn't long before Sisyphus found himself good and dead and living (that's probably the wrong word) in the Lower World. But Sisyphus immediately, and quite bitterly, complained about all of this to Pluto, especially that his wife had not performed the proper burial ceremonies, and demanded that he be allowed to return to the living. Pluto, who was one of the really early chauvinists, agreed that Sisyphus' wife needed to be chastised and foolishly gave in and agreed to give him a temporary leave of absence. But as one might expect, once Sisyphus began enjoying "the warmth of the sun and the beauty of the sea" again, he absolutely refused to return to the world of darkness.

Years later, with a decree from the gods in hand, Mercury was sent to fetch Sisyphus back to Hades, where everyone but Sisyphus agreed he belonged. Using force, Mercury successfully managed to get Sisyphus back underground, where Pluto, who was extremely ticked off by this point, condemned Sisyphus to ceaselessly roll a huge stone to the top of a high hill, where the stone would inevitably run into the full force of gravity and fall back on its own weight, the idea being that there is no greater punishment, in life or death, than endless, futile labor.

Regardless of how poorly I recall my Greek mythology, it seems to me that there is much to be learned from this wonderful old myth. To begin with, I'm reminded to pick my tasks on this earth very carefully, because even while playing by all the rules and raking in the monthly paychecks, there's always the nagging possibility that we might just be spending most of our lives accomplishing nothing; secondly, that although there is always a price to pay for gleefully jerking the gods around, it's not as scary as we are led to believe; thirdly, in this "single instant" that is given to us, we should live our lives unafraid and "leave no wine untasted"; and finally, that regardless of the joys and passions of this life, one must always return to his or her burdens.

Pluto, who was extremely ticked off by this point, condemned Sisyphus to ceaselessly roll a huge stone to the top of a high hill, where the stone would inevitably run into the full force of gravity and fall back on its own weight.

Sisyphus understood that fate is actually a human matter, which must be settled among men, and not gods. He also knew that life belongs to those who are willing to risk, and he even dared to tie up Death and ask for a furlough from hell. And maybe if more of us could find it in ourselves to follow his example from time to time, even knowing that a huge stone may await us, at least our descent back down the hill will take place in joy.

McNair hands Raiders a loss in third round

But RCHS will play tonight in Chico

The River City High School girls not only made it into the playoffs this season, but won their first two games.

Then, on February 28, the Raider squad traveled to Stockton to face McNair in the third round of CIF basketball playoffs.

River City kept the game close through 2 quarters of play, down by just six at the half. But in the third quarter of play, McNair went on a big run. By the end of the 3rd quarter, they were ahead by nine, and McNair would eventually go on to win by a final of 58-43.

Carmen Garcia was the high scorer for River City, with 11 points.

Although the team lost the game and will miss a chance to play at the Power Balance Pavilion next week, their season continues as they compete in tournament play. They will meet Nor Cal in Chico at 7 p.m. tonight.

River City boasted a 25-2 record over the regular season and by the end of their playoff run their record shows 27-3. Out of 234 California Division 2 Teams, River City is ranked fourth, behind St. Mary's, Monache and Casa Grande.

GUEST COMMENTARY:

Library wants your ideas

By Patty Wong
Yolo County Librarian

When I came to Yolo County Library as the County Librarian, I got to know people from grass-roots community groups that have supported the Library for over one hundred years. Each branch of the Yolo County Library has local residents who contribute their time and energy to support their local library. All of us at the Yolo County Library want to ensure this ongoing community involvement in public libraries. To reach this goal, we've begun our first-ever strategic planning process.

I'd like to invite all residents to participate in a survey that will help shape the future of Yolo County Public Libraries. The survey is part of a strategic planning process that includes research, public comment, interviews and discussion sessions with community leaders and library staff. Some of the questions I'd like folks to think about are: What makes Yolo County a unique community? Why is Yolo County a great place to live, work and raise a family? Through your comments, we'll learn about our community's needs and vision for the future. We'll use this information to build a stronger public library.

In many ways the public library is an integral part of the quality of life in Yolo County. It serves the information needs of all residents, including recreational reading, research, online

Letters to the Editor

Fashion show

Everyone is invited to join the fun when Yolo County celebrities "strut their stuff" Thursday night, March 29th at the West Sacramento City Hall Galleria. Tickets for the Yolo County Children's Alliance and Child Abuse Prevention Council annual celebrity fund raiser are $45 each and the proceeds will go to support the work of YCCA, including our child abuse prevention programs.

The 3rd Annual Yolo County "Celebrity Fashion Show" will feature many Yolo County elected officials, business community leaders while showcasing local boutiques and clothiers. In past years, more than 200 government, community and business leaders have attended the popular event. Of special note this year, Scott Moak, "Voice of the Sacramento Kings" will be the emcee, and special appearances are planned by the River Cats' "Dinger,"; the Kings' "Slamson," and West Sacramento's own "Mooie!"

Critical YCCA and child abuse prevention programs supported through this annual fund raiser include counseling support to pregnant women and families with newborns, Baby Steps, home visits through the Step-by-Step / Paso a Paso program; free food distribution of fresh produce, the Community Health Initiative, and Foster Parent Recruitment. We also distribute free clothing, diapers, shoes and jackets to keep children adequately dressed and warm.

We live in stressful times, and stress, combined with substance abuse, often leads to a dangerous home environment for children. We remind everyone who has the opportunity to influence the life of a child, that "It Only Takes a Minute" to have a positive effect on a child by showing him/her that you care and that they are important to you.

Celebrity Fashion Show tickets are available online at www.yolokids.org or by calling the Yolo County Children's Alliance and Child Abuse Prevention Council at 530-757-5558.

Student volunteers

The River City High School Interact Club is a community service club sponsored by the two Rotary clubs of West Sacramento. This club has been successful since its inception three years ago. Each year the students must complete two community service projects and one International project.

This year the students will have been involved in at least nine community service projects.

The club must earn money for their international project. This year, Forever Yours Flowers on Merkley Avenue kindly donated carnations to the RCHS Interact Club to sell for Valentine's Day. Christine Maltez, chairperson for this event, said this fundraiser was, "fantastic." The students had fun delivering the carnations to students and staff at RCHS.

LIBRARY from p. 4

computer access, ready for kindergarten and adult literacy programs, volunteer opportunities and much more. Small business owners use the public library to work and read up on new management publications. Parents bring their children to the library for free events, homework help and a constant source of new books to read. Programs for older adults help answer their questions about financial issues and health care.

In recent years, we've implemented new conveniences such as downloadable e-books and heldclasses for community members to learn how to use this new technology. A new mobilewebsite allows residents to check their library account on their smart device to see if their requested book, movie or CD is waiting for them.

Our communities have changed too, and library services are needed more than ever in our rural areas such as Knights Landing and Yolo. These small libraries help close the digital divide in rural areas where information is harder to access because of distance, scarcity of community gathering places and the lack of high speed cable. These libraries also provide access to resources for rural residents to live happy and productive lives in a complex and ever-changing world.

I invite you to participate in the Yolo County Library planning process by completing the survey or by contacting Elizabeth Gray, Assistant County Librarian (530) 666-8084 or elizabeth.gray@yolocounty.org, with your input.

The survey will be available soon online at www.yolocountylibrary.org and will be available in hard copy format in all Yolo County branch libraries. Those who complete the survey may choose to be entered in a raffle to win a book or tote bag.

The Yolo County Library needs your help in shaping the future direction of our public libraries. Please join us in the endeavor.

some homework can prevent many problems. The D.A.'s office suggests that homeowners should follow these guidelines when hiring someone to work on their home:

— Be wary of contractors contacting you door-to-door or by telephone;

— Take the time to thoroughly check out contractors before hiring one;

— Get three written bids and call to check references. Never pay by cash; and — Check the contractors license number and workers compensation insurance with the CSLB at 1-800-321-2752 or www.cslb.ca.gov.

Code requirements vary. The West Sacramento Building Department can be reached at (916) 617-4645.

GO FIGURE! by Linda Thistle

COUCH THEATER DVD PREVIEWS
BY SAM STRUCKHOFF

PICKS OF THE WEEK

"The Adventures of Tintin" (PG) -- Steven Spielberg crams as much excitement per-pixel as can fit into this animated adventure. Based on the venerated Danish comic series, "Tintin" follows a young investigative reporter and his dog as they go on dangerous and improbable journeys.

The pace will keep the kids glued to the screen, but could leave some grownups feeling exhausted. The rope-swinging, bullet-dodging, sight-gag mania of it all brings flashbacks to the golden days of Indiana Jones -- augmented to an inhuman level by Spielberg's desire to get every drop out of the animated medium.

"My Week with Marilyn" (R) -- While working on a not-much-remembered movie, movie darling Marilyn Monroe spent some time with a 23-year-old English production assistant, and apparently revealed her true self and changed the guy's life. That guy went on to write a memoir of their time together, and now it's a decent movie propped up by one stellar pillar -- the portrayal of Monroe by Michelle Williams.

'The Adventures of Tintin'

The story may sag, the script could be repetitive and some of the performances may cloy, but the lynchpin of the whole picture stays strong as Williams puts out the right mix of confusion, excitement and longing that makes the starlet of yesteryear memorable. Fans of slow, intimate biopics will love it, but this movie isn't as iconic as its subject.

"Young Adult" (R) -- Charlize Theron plays Mavis, a grown woman who just wants to be prom queen again. Mavis is a young-adult fiction writer who returns to her hometown under the delusion that her old boyfriend (Patrick Wilson) and everyone she knew from high school will worship her like in the old days. Reality starts to crush the thick walls of her immature psyche, and Mavis forms an unlikely friendship with one of the guys she used to step on (Patton Oswalt).

The script is fresh, and the actors know it. Oswalt has no problem playing the grownup geek still nursing some wounds from his teen years. Theron absolutely knocks it out of the park as an entitled princess too old to think the world revolves around her.

DOG OF THE WEEK

"The Three Musketeers" (PG-13) -- Injecting CGI and brute-force witticisms into old adventure stories doesn't always pay off. In some cases, the result is a bland, loud, humorless flop with no redeeming characteristics. This most recent adaptation of the Three Musketeers lands squarely in that category. Apparently made from ideas that were too hacky to fit into the last "Pirates of the Caribbean" sequel, this musketeer flick falls on its sword and can't get up.

"The End of Money: Counterfeiters, Preachers, Techies, Dreamers and the Coming Cashless Society"
by David Wolman
(Da Capo, $25)
Reviewed by Larry Cox

Our society has come a long way since Marco Polo became intrigued by the paper notes he saw circulating in China more than 700 years ago. From the gold standard to the ascent of national currencies and finally to India, where there is a growing trend to abandon cash entirely, are we heading toward a time when the little numbered bits of paper and metal discs we use in our day-to-day lives becomes obsolete?

Remember how unthinkable it was just a few short years ago when experts predicted that plastic cards would replace most of our cash transactions? David Wolman, a contributing editor to Wired, believes that there could be an even better way to transact in the future, something more convenient than checks, credit cards and PayPal.

To see what that kind of life would be like, Wolman set out to imagine a future without cash. He began by personally eliminating cash for an entire year, but quickly discovered that his experiment wasn't as easy as he had thought. For example, simple ordinary things like buying a cup of coffee, taking care of his son and supermarket shopping became daunting challenges. When he

Eat According to the Way You Sleep!

When it comes to sleep patterns, "lark" is a term often given to people who like to get up early. An "owl" is someone who likes to stay up late. While a lark may be ready for bed by 10 p.m., an owl may wish the day started at 10 a.m. So what does this have to do with cooking?

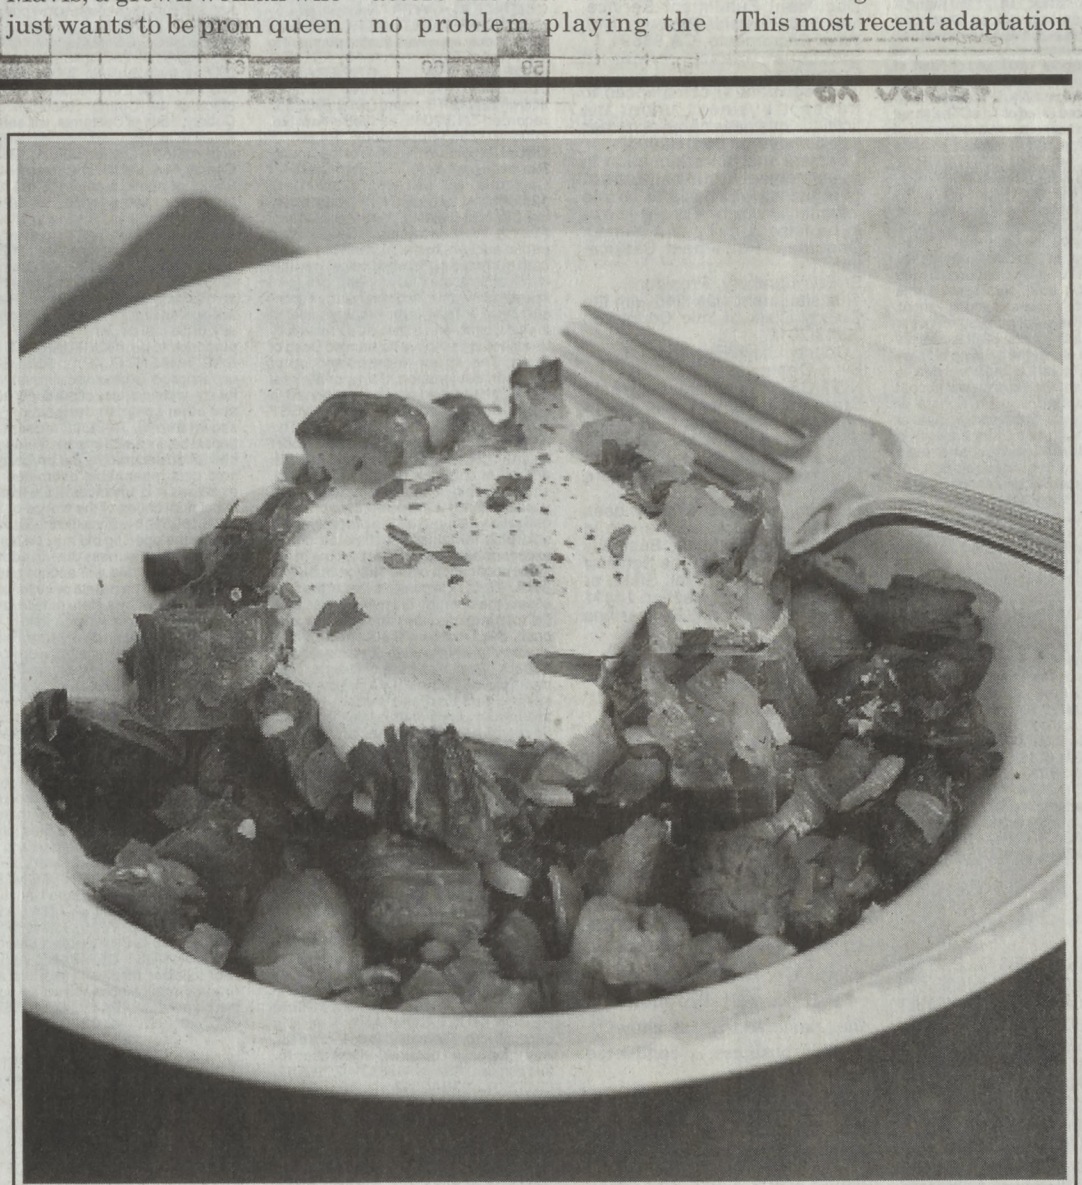
Perhaps you're a night owl and can barely drag out of bed in the morning, let alone fix breakfast. Night owls should do as much as possible the night before when they have a full tank of energy. For example:

--Mix any frozen juice.
--Set the table, get out the cereal, perhaps measure the coffee.
--Round up any utensils needed for cooking breakfast.
--Unload the dishwasher so it's ready to use the next day.

On the other hand, if you're a lark, your energy tank may already be low by dinnertime. Do some dinner preparations earlier in the day. For example:

--Unload the dishwasher in the morning.
--Measure ingredients needed for the evening meal. Store perishable ones, covered, in the refrigerator. Cover and store nonperishable ones, in your prep area on the kitchen counter.
--Many homemade salad dressings can be mixed in the morning.
--Prepare a dessert for the evening meal.

Whether you're most energetic in the morning or at night, this recipe for Easy Corned Beef Hash makes a delicious breakfast along with of some fresh fruit, or a wonderful dinner by adding a side salad. You can make it as a dinner item and then, serve the leftovers topped with eggs for breakfast.



Leftover hash also is delicious in omelets and frittatas, as a topping for an English muffin or as a filling for sandwiches, pita bread or a tortilla. It's the perfect way to start (or end) the day!

EASY CORNED BEEF HASH

Corned beef is usually brisket that has been brined, but may be another cut of beef. It's minced into small pieces, along with spices and other ingredients. Corned beef is traditionally used in Eastern European, Irish and Jewish cooking. You can add in a cup of shredded cabbage and carrots when you add in the potatoes, if desired.

2 teaspoons vegetable oil
2 teaspoons butter
1 large onion, chopped
4 cups diced cooked potatoes, or frozen hash-brown potatoes
1 cup chopped lean corned beef brisket (4 ounces)
1/2 cup reduced-sodium chicken broth
1 tablespoon prepared horseradish or hot sauce
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
1/4 cup chopped fresh parsley or basil
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
4 large eggs (optional)

1. In a large cast-iron or heavy-bottomed skillet, heat oil and butter over medium-high heat. Add onion and saute until it starts to soften and caramelizes, 5 to 8 minutes. Add potatoes and cook, stirring, until they brown in spots and become crusty, about 8 minutes more.

2. Stir in corned beef, broth, horseradish or hot sauce, and Worcestershire sauce, and cook, scraping up any browned bits, until liquid is absorbed, 5 to 8 minutes.

3. Add parsley or basil, and season with salt and pepper. If serving the Hash for breakfast, break 4 eggs, one at a time, on top of hash in skillet; cover, and cook just until whites are set but the yolks are still runny, about 10 minutes. Use a spatula to divide among four plates. Serve with some fresh fruit for breakfast, or a salad for dinner.
